GREEK ANTHOLOGY

BOOK IX

THE DECLAMATORY AND DESCRIPTIVE EPIGRAMS

THIS book, as we should naturally expect, is especially rich in epigrams from the Stephanus of Philippus, the rhetorical style of epigram having been in vogue during the period covered by that collection. There are several quite long series from this source, retaining the alphabetical order in which they were arranged, Nos. 215–312, 403–423, 541–562. It is correspondingly poor in poems from Meleager's Stephanus (Nos. 313–338). It contains a good deal of the Alexandrian Palladas, a contemporary of Hypatia, most of which we could well dispense with. The latter part, from No. 582 onwards, consists mostly of real or pretended inscriptions on works of art or buildings, many quite unworthy of preservation, but some, especially those on baths, quite graceful. The last three epigrams, written in a later hand, do not belong to the original Anthology.

THE DECLAMATORY AND DESCRIPTIVE EPIGRAMS

1.—POLYAENUS OF SARDIS

A CRUEL viper strnek the nursing udder of a doe which had newly calved as it hung down full of milk. Her fawn sucked the teat contaminated by poison, and from the fatal wonnd imbibed bitter milk charged with venom ill to enre. Death was transferred from mother to child, and at once by pitiless fate the breast bereft the young one of the gift of life that it owed to the womb.

2.—TIBERIUS ILLUSTRIUS

A VIPER, the most murderous of noxions beasts, injected her venom into the udder, swollen with milk, of a doe that had just ealved, and the kid, sucking its mother's poisoned milk, drank up her death.

3.—ANTIPATER, BY SOME ATTRIBUTED TO PLATO

stones. And all my twigs and flourishing shoots are broken, hit as I am by showers of pebbles. It is no advantage for trees to be fruitful. I indeed, poor tree, bore fruit only for my own undoing.

4.—CYLENIUS

I, THE wild pear-tree of the thicket, a denizen of the wilderness where the wild beasts feed, once bearing plenty of bastard fruit, have had foreign shoots grafted on me, and flourish now no longer wild, but loaded with a crop that is not my natural one. Gardener, I am deeply grateful for thy pains, owing it to thee that I now am enrolled in the tribe of noble fruit-trees.

5.—PALLADAS

This pear-tree is the sweet result of the labour of my hand, with which in summer I fixed the graft in its moist bark. The slip, rooted on the tree by the incision, has changed its fruit, and though it is still a pyraster¹ below, it is a fragrant-fruited pear-tree above.

6.—BY THE SAME

I WAS a pyraster; thy hand hath made me a fragrant pear-tree by inserting a graft, and I reward thee for thy kindness.

7.—JULIUS POLYAENUS

ZEUS, who rulest the holy land of Coreyra, though thy ears be ever full of the fears of suppliants or the thanks of those whose prayers thou hast heard, yet hearken to me, too, and grant me by a true promise that this be the end of my exile, and that I may dwell in my native land, my long labours over.

8.—BY THE SAME

HOPE ever makes the period of our days steal away, and the last dawn surprises us with many projects unaccomplished.

9.—BY THE SAME

OFTEN when I have prayed to thee, Zeus, hast thou granted me the welcome gift of fair weather till the end of my voyage. Give it me on this voyage, too ;
save me and bear me to the haven where toil ends.
The delight of life is in our home and country, and superfluous cares make life not life but vexation.

10.—ANTIPATER OF THESSALONICA

AN octopus once, stretched out on a rock that projected into the sea, extended his many feet to let them bask in the sun. He had not yet changed to the colour of the rock, and therefore a sharp-eyed eagle saw him from the clouds and seized him, but fell, unhappy bird, entangled by his tentacles, into the sea, losing both its prey and its life.

11.—PHILIPPUS or ISIDORUS

ONE man was maimed in his legs, while another had lost his eyesight, but each contributed to the other that of which mischance had deprived him. For the blind man, taking the lame man on his shoulders, kept a straight course by listening to the other's orders. It was bitter, all-daring necessity which taught them all this, instructing them how, by dividing their imperfections between them, to make a perfect whole.

THE DECLAMATORY EPIGRAMS

12.—LEONIDAS OF ALEXANDRIA

THE blind beggar supported the lame one on his feet, and gained in return the help of the other's eyes. Thus the two incomplete beings fitted into each other to form one complete being, each supplying what the other lacked.

13.—PLATO THE YOUNGER

A BLIND man carried a lame man on his back, lending him his feet and borrowing from him his eyes.

13B.—ANTIPHILUS OF BYZANTIUM

BOTH are maimed and strolling beggars; but the one has lost the use of his eyes, the other the support of his legs. Each serves the other; for the blind man, taking the lame one on his back, walks gingerly by the aid of eyes not his own. One nature supplied the needs of both; for each contributed to the other his deficiency to form a whole.

14.—BY THE SAME

PHAEDO saw an octopus in the shallows by the beach oaring itself along in secret, and seizing it, he threw it rapidly on land before it could twine its eight spirals tightly round his hand. Whirled into a bush it fell on the home of a luckless hare, and twirling round fleet-footed puss's feet held them bound. The captured was capturer, and you, old man, got the unexpected gift of a booty both from sea and land.

THOU who seekest to set fire itself ablaze, who desirest to light thy lovely lamp at night, take thee light here from my soul, for that which is afire within me sends forth fierce flames.

16.—MELEAGER

THE Graces are three, and three are the sweet virgin Hours, and three fierce girl Loves cast their arrows at me. Yea, verily, three bows hath Love prepared for me, as if he would wound in me not one heart, but three.

17.—GERMANICUS CAESAR

ONCE a hare from the mountain height leapt into the sea in her effort to escape from a dog's cruel fangs. But not even thus did she escape her fate; for at once a sea-dog seized her and bereft her of life. Out of the fire, as the saying is, into the flame didst thou fall. Of a truth Fate reared thee to be a meal for a dog either on the land or in the sea.

18.—BY THE SAME

On the Same

ONE dog captured me after another. What is strange in that? Beasts of the water and beasts of the land have like rage against me. Henceforth, ye hares, may the sky be open to your course. But I fear thee, Heaven; thou too hast a dog among thy stars.

19.—ARCHIAS OF MYTILENE

“EAGLE,” who once outshone all fleet-footed horses; about whose legs chaplets once hung; he whom Pytho, the oracular seat of Phoebus, once crowned in the games, where he raced like a swiftly flying bird; he whom Nemea, too, the nurse of the grim lion, crowned, and Pisa and Isthmus with its two beaches, is now fettered by a collar as if by a bit, and grinds corn by turning a rough stone. He suffers the same fate as Heracles, who also, after accomplishing so much, put on the yoke of slavery.

20.—ANONYMOUS

On the Same

I, SIR, who once gained the crown on the banks of Alpheius, and was twice proclaimed victor by the water of Castalia; I, who was announced the winner at Nemea, and formerly, as a colt, at Isthmus; I, who ran swift as the winged winds—see me now, how in my old age I turn the rotating stone driven in mockery of the crowns I won.

21.—ANONYMOUS

I, PEGASUS, attach blame to thee, my country Thessaly, breeder of horses, for this unmerited end of my days. I, who was led in procession at Pytho and Isthmus; I, who went to the festival of Nemean Zeus and to Olympia to win the Arcadian olive-twigs, now drag the heavy weight of the round Nisyrian¹ mill-stone, grinding fine from the ears the fruit of Demeter.

For the goddess who presides over child-bed deemed it not right to slay creatures in labour, having learnt to pity them.

23.—ANTIPATER

THE husbandman Arehippus, when, smitten by grave sickness, he was just breathing his last and gliding to Hades, spoke thus to his sons: "I charge you, dear children, that ye love the mattock and the life of a farmer. Look not with favour on the weary labour of them who sail the treacherous waves and the heavy toil of perilous sea-faring. Even as a mother is sweeter than a stepmother, so is the land more to be desired than the grey sea."

THESE are the divine-voiced women that Helieon fed with song, Helieon and Macedonian Pieria's rock : Praxilla ; Moero ; Anyte, the female Homer ; Sappho, glory of the Lesbian women with lovely tresses ; Erinna ; renowned Telesilla ; and thou, Corinna, who didst sing the martial shield of Athena ; Nossis, the tender-voiced, and dulcet-toned Myrtis—all craftswomen of eternal pages. Great Heaven gave birth to nine Muses, and Earth to these ten, the deathless delight of men.¹

THOUGH I, Mycenae, am but a heap of dust here in the desert, though I am meaner to look at than any sixth century, Corinna of Tanagra (some of whose work has recently been recovered) in the fifth century, and Myrtis of Anthedon a little before Pindar whom she is said to have instructed. Anyte and Nossis are represented in the Anthology.

29.—ANTIPHILUS OF BYZANTIUM

ADVENTURE, thou inventor of ships (for thou didst discover the paths of the sea, and didst excite men's minds by hope of gain), what treacherous timbers didst thou fashion; what lust for gain, oft brought home to them by death, hast thou instilled into men! Of a truth the race of mortals had been a golden one, if the sea, like hell, were viewed from the land in dim distance.

30.—ZELOTUS OR BASSUS

I AM a pine-tree broken by the wind on land. Why do you send me to the sea, a spar shipwrecked before sailing?

31.—ZELOTUS

WHY, shipwrights, do ye entrust to the sea this pine, which the strong south-wester tore up by the roots from the mountain side? I shall make no lucky hull at sea, I, a tree which the winds hate. On land I already experienced the ill-fortune of the sea.

32.—ANONYMOUS

I WAS a newly-built ship on the surf-beaten beach, and had not yet touched the grey waves. But the sea would not be kept waiting for me; the wild flood rose and carried me away from the firm shore, an unhappy bark indeed . . . to whom the stormy waves were fatal both on land and at sea.

33.—CYLENIUS

BEFORE I was a ship I perished. What more could I have suffered if I had become familiar with the deep? Alas, every bark meets its end by the waves!

34.—ANTIPHILUS OF BYZANTIUM

AFTER I had traversed innumerable waves of the limitless sea, and stood firm for a season on the land, I was destroyed not by the sea, the terror of ships, but on shore by fire. Who will say that the sea is the more treacherous of the two? It was the earth on which I came into being that destroyed me, and I lie on the beach, reproaching the land for the fate I expected from the sea.

35.—BY THE SAME

I AM the newly-fashioned keel of a ship, and the sea beside which I lay carried me off, raging against me even on land.

36.—SECUNDUS

I, THE ship which had traversed the paths of the limitless ocean, and swum so often through the gray waves; I, whom neither the black east wind overwhelmed nor the fierce swell raised by the winter south-westers drove on shore, am now shipwrecked in the flames, and reproach the faithless land, in sore need now of the waters of my sea.

THE DECLAMATORY EPIGRAMS

67.—ANONYMOUS

THE boy was crowning his stepmother's funeral stele, a tall column, thinking that in changing life for death she had changed her character. But it came down on the tomb and killed him. Stepsons, avoid even the tomb of your stepmother.

68.—ANONYMOUS

STEPMOTHERS are always a curse to their step-children, and do not keep them safe even when they love them. Remember Phaedra and Hippolytus.

69.—PARMENION OF MACEDONIA

A STEPMOTHER's spite is ever mordant, and not gentle even in love. I know what befel chaste Hippolytus.

70.—MNASALCAS

O DAUGHTER of Pandion with the plaintive twittering voicee, thou who didst submit to the unlawful embraces of Tereus, why dost thou complain, swallow, all day in the house? Cease, for tears await thee hereafter too.

71.—ANTIPHILUS OF BYZANTIUM

OVERHANGING branches of the spreading oak, that from on high shade well men seeking shelter from the untempered heat, leafy boughs roofing closer than tiles, the home of wood-pigeons, the home of cicadas, O noontide branches, guard me, too, who lie beneath your foliage, taking refuge from the rays of the sun.

72.—ANTIPATER

HERMES, ye shepherds, is easily contented, rejoicing in libations of milk and honey from the oak-tree, but not so Heracles. He demands a ram or fat lamb, or in any case a whole victim. But he keeps off the wolves. What profits that, when the sheep he protects if not slain by the wolf is slain by its protector?

73.—ANTIPHILUS OF BYZANTIUM

O ALTERNATING flood of the Euboean gulf, vagabond water, running contrary to thy own current, how strong but inconstant a stream thou lendest to the ships, changing its direction regularly thrice by day and thrice by night! Thou art one of the marvels of life, and I am filled with infinite wonder at thee, but do not seek the reason of thy factious course. It is the business and the secret of Nature.

74.—ANONYMOUS

I WAS once the field of Achaemenides and am now Menippus', and I shall continue to pass from one man to another. For Achaemenides once thought he possessed me, and Menippus again thinks he does; but I belong to no man, only to Fortune.

75.—EVENUS OF ASCALON

(The Vine speaks)

THOUGH thou eatest me to the root, billy-goat, I will yet bear fruit enough to provide a libation for thee when thou art sacrificed.

76.—ANTIPATER OF SIDON

OF two snares one caught a fat thrush, and the other, in its horsehair fetters, a blackbird. Now while the thrush did not free its plump body from the twisted noose round its neck, to enjoy again the light of day, the other snare let free the holy blackbird. Even deaf bird-snares, then, feel compassion for singers.

77.—ANTIPATER OF THESSALONICA

HERA, tortured by the beauty of Ganymede, and with the soul-consuming sting of jealousy in her heart, once spoke thus : “ Troy gave birth to a male flame for Zeus ; therefore I will send a flame to fall on Troy, Paris the bringer of woe. No eagle shall come again to the Trojans, but vultures to the feast, the day that the Danai gather the spoils of their labour.”

78.—LEONIDAS OF ALEXANDRIA

(This and the two following are Isopsepha)

Do not, master, find fault with me, the wild pear-tree, ever loaded with unripe fruit. For the pears which I ripen on my branches are pilfered by another than yourself, but the unripe ones remain hanging round their mother.

79.—BY THE SAME

OF my own will I let my fruits be plucked, but when they are ripe. Stop throwing hard stones at me. Bacchus too will wax wrath with thee for doing injury to his gift. Bear in mind the fate of Lycurgus.

81.—CRINAGORAS

TELL me not that death is the end of life. The dead, like the living, have their own causes of suffering. Look at the fate of Nieias of Cos.¹ He had gone to rest in Hades, and now his dead body has come again into the light of day. For his fellow-citizens, forcing the bolts of his tomb, dragged out the poor hard-dying² wretch to punishment.

82.—ANTIPATER OF THESSALONICA

TRUST not, mariner, to the fatal sea, even when thou art at anchor, even when thy hawsers are fast on land. For Ion fell overboard in the harbour, and his active hands, fettered by the wine, were useless for swimming. Shun dances and carousal on board ship. The sea is the enemy of Baeehus. Such is the law established by the Tyrrhene pirates.³

83.—PHILIPPUS

THE dolphins, the fish-eating dogs of the sea, were sporting round the ship as she moved rapidly on her the meaning of δυσθανέα is that they, so to speak, prolonged his agony as if he were still alive.

course. A boar-hound, taking them for game, dashed, poor fellow, into the sea, as he would have dashed on land. He perished for the sake of a chase that was strange to him; for not all dogs are light of foot in the sea.

84.—ANTIPHANES

A SHEPHERD saw the straying hull of a sea-tost boat carried along shore by the fiercee waves. He seized it with his hand, and it dragged its saviour into the deep sea, so bitter was its hatred of all mankind. Thus the shepherd met with the fate of a shipwrecked mariner. Alas! both the woods and the harbour are put in mourning by that boat.

85.—PHILIPPUS OF THESSALONICA

THE sea destroyed my boat, but Heaven bestowed on me, as I was carried hither and thither, a more weleome natural boat. For seeing my father's body coming to me opportunely, I climbed on it, a solitary oarsman, a burden whieh it was its duty to bear. The old man bore me to the harbour, thus giving life to me twiee, on land as a babe and again at sea.

86.—ANTIPHILUS

AN omnivorous, crawling,lickerish mouse, seeing in the house an oyster with its lips open, had a bite at its flesh-like wet beard. Immediately the house of shell closed tightly with a clap owing to the pain, and the mouse, locked in the prison from which there was no escape, compassed for himself death and the tomb.

No longer warble, blackbird, by the oak-tree, no longer perch on the highest branch and call. This tree is thy enemy; hie thee to where the vine mounts with shady green leaves. Set thy feet on its branch and sing by it, pouring shrill notes from thy throat. For the oak bears the mistletoe which is the foe of birds, but the vine bears grape-clusters; and Bacchus loves songsters.

88.—PHILIPPUS OF THESSALONICA

I, THE honey-voiced nightingale, was flying over the sea, complaining of Boreas (for not even the wind that blows from Thrace is kind to me),¹ when a dolphin received me on his back, the sea-creature serving as the chariot of the winged one. Borne by this most faithful boatman, I charmed the oarless sailor by the lyre of my lips. The dolphins ever served as oarsmen to the Muses without payment. The tale of Arion is not untrue.

Well hath Nemesis borne thee in mind, Ilios, since now, when Mycenae is no longer to be seen, thou art, and art a city.

139.—CLAUDIANUS

THE wanton, accompanying her damee with shrill shrieks and eastanets, beats the brazen elappers together with quivering movements. Her grey hair, the harbinger of death, is conealed by . . . She tortures her eyes to dart ineffectual flashes ; her false colour is sicklied o'er by the pallor of shame ; while a fietitious splendour clothes her hidden breasts.

140.—BY THE SAME

A SERVING-MAN stood in the porch of Helicon¹ bearing on his shoulders a brazen-footed stool he had seized, and would not give it to me, tired as I was, to sit on and recite. Therefore ingenious neeessity sharpened my wit to deal with the situation.²

141.—ANONYMOUS

A MAN in a lethargy and a maniac lying in one bed ridded each other of their respeetive maladies. For the one, made daring by his madness, leapt from the bed and belaboured the insensible man all over. The blows cured both, waking up the one, and his great exertion throwing the other into a sleep.

142.—ANONVMOUS

WE do worship to horned Pan, the walker on the crags, the leader of the Nymphs, who dwelleth in this house of rock, praying him to look with favour on all us who came to this constant fountain and quenehed our thirst.

² What he means is a mystery to us. The circumstances must have been known to the public.

SIMPLE is this my dwelling (beside the big waves am I enthroned, the queen of the sea-bathed beach), but dear to me; for I delight in the sea, vast and terrible, and in the sailors who come to me for safety. Pay honour to Cypris, and either in thy love or on the gray sea I shall be a propitious gale to bear thee on.

144.—ANYTE

THIS is the place of Cypris, for it is sweet to her to look ever from the land on the bright deep, that she may make the voyages of sailors happy; and around the sea trembles, looking on her polished image.

DIOGENES the cynie, on his arrival in Hades, after his wise old age was finished, laughed when he saw Croesus. Spreading his cloak on the ground near the king, who once drew great store of gold from the river,¹ he said: "Now, too, I take up more room than you; for all I had I have brought with me, but you, Croesus, have nothing."

146.—ANONYMOUS

I, EUNUS, have set up Hope and Nemesis by the altar, the one in order that thou mayst hope, the other that thou mayst get nothing.²

WEEP for life, Heraclitus, much more than when thou didst live, for life is now more pitiable. Laugh now, Demoeritus, at life far more than before; the life of all is now more laughable. And I, too, looking at you, am puzzled as to how I am to weep with the one and laugh with the other.

149.—ANTIPATER OF THESSALONICA

ARISTIDES the . . . had not much from many sources, but his fortune was one ewe and one cow. Yet, notwithstanding his poverty, he escaped not Envy, and in one and the same day wild beasts killed the sheep and a difficult birth the cow. Hating the sight of his yard, in which the sound of bleating was silent, he hanged himself by the strap of his wallet from this wild pear-tree.

150.—BY THE SAME

ALL the wealth of Aristides was one heifer and one fleecy sheep. By their means he kept famine from the door. But he lost both; a wolf killed the sheep and the cow perished in labour. His poor stock was gone, and noosing his neck in the strap of his wallet, the wretched man died close to his cabin, which no longer echoed to the sound of lowing.

¹ The bridge was over the Cephissus on the road to Eleusis. Xenocles' services in building it are mentioned in an inscription.

Where are the temples of the immortals, the houses and the matrons of the town of Sisyphus, and her myriads of people ? Not even a trace is left of thee, most unhappy of towns, but war has seized on and devoured everything. We alone, the Nereids, Ocean's daughters, remain inviolate, and lament, like halegons, thy sorrows.

On Troy

I AM the once famous city of Priam, which not the ten years' war of the Greeks succeeded in sacking by open force, but the cursed wooden horse. So far did bitter Envy subdue thee ; but thy name and glory alone she cannot hide.

Look on the ambush that took Troy after ten years; look on the horse whose belly was big with the armed and silent Greeks. Who said Love was a god? We see that no work of the gods is evil, but he smiles at the blood of men. Does he not bear in his hand a sword swift to slay? Look at the incredible trophies of this deed of blood prompted by a god. The mother, with her child, lies slain, and on their bodies the man stoned by sentence of the law. This that we see is not the work of Hades or of Ares, but the work of Love. This is how the boy plays.¹

158.—ANONYMOUS

THREE girls once drew lots for fun, who first should go to Hades. Thrice they threw the die, and the cast of all fell on one. She made mockery of the lot, which nevertheless was her true destiny. For, unhappy girl, she slipped and fell from the house-top afterwards, as none could have foreseen, and went to Hades even as the lot had lighted on her. A lot tells no falsehood when it is an evil one; but as for better chance neither the prayers of mortals nor their hands can attain it.

159.—ANONYMOUS

ONE, seeing at the cross-roads the skull of a dead man, wept not at the presentation of the fate common to all men, but stooping, picked up in his right hand a stone and threw it at the skull. The stone, a dumb thing in appearance, yet breathed vengeance; for, hitting the bone, it bounded off and blinded the thrower, robbing him of his sweet sight. Until his death he was punished, and bewept his foolish excellence of aim.

THE DECLAMATORY EPIGRAMS

165.—PALLADAS OF ALEXANDRIA

WOMAN is the wrath of Zeus, given to men in the place of fire, a grievous exchange.¹ For she burns up and withers man with care, and brings hasty old age on youth. Even Zeus does not possess Hera of the golden throne unvexed; indeed he hath often cast her out from the immortals to hang in the mist and clouds; Homer knew this, and hath described even Zeus as being wrath with his wife. Thus never is a woman at concord with her husband, not even when she lies beside him on a floor of gold.

166.—BY THE SAME

HOMER shows us that every woman is wicked and treacherous; be she chaste or a whore, in either case she is perdition. Helen's adultery caused the murder of men, and Penelope's chastity caused death. All the woes of the Iliad were for the sake of one woman, and Penelope was the cause of the Odyssey.

167.—BY THE SAME

ZEUS, in place of fire, bestowed another fire, woman. Would that neither woman nor fire had come into being! Fire, it is true, is soon put out, but woman is a fire unquenchable, flaming, ever alight.

168.—BY THE SAME

I, UNHAPPY man, have married a wife who is “pernicious wrath,” and my profession, too, obliges me to begin with “wrath.”² Oh, man of much wrath, ² “Wrath” being the first word of the Iliad, which as a grammarian he had to read.

THE DECLAMATORY EPIGRAMS

173.—BY THE SAME

THE beginning of grammar¹ is a curse in five lines. The first has the word “wrath,” the second “pernicious,” and after that “many woes” of the Greeks; the third “leads down souls to Hades”; to the fourth belong “spoil” and “dogs”; to the fifth “birds” of ill-omen and the “anger of Zeus.” How, then, can a grammarian avoid having many sorrows after five curses and five cases (falls)?

174.—BY THE SAME

THE teachers here are those men with whom Sarapis is angry; they start from “pernicious wrath.” Here the nurse brings, perforce, the fee once a month, tying up the wretched pittance in byblus and paper, and puts the contemptible little paper, like a pinch of incense, by the master’s seat, as if by a tomb. She steals some of the small fee and changes the coins, substituting leaden ones, and she receives her commission. If any one agrees to pay a gold coin for a whole year, he changes his teacher in the eleventh month before paying up, and is so ungrateful as to make fun, too, of his former master after robbing him of a whole year’s fee.

175.—BY THE SAME

I SELL Callimachus and Pindar, and all the cases in the grammar, being myself a sore case of poverty.

238.—ANTIPATER OF THESSALONICA

APOLLO is a big boy here in this bronze work of Onatas which testifies to the beauty of Leto and Zeus, and proclaims that not idly did Zeus love her, and that, even as the saying is, the eyes and head of the son of Cronos are glorious.² Not even Hera will be displeased with this bronze which Onatas moulded to such beauty by the help of Ilithyia.³

¹ The statue is regarded as the child of the artist. This statue of Apollo was at Pergamus (Paus. viii. 42, 7).

A RAM with crumpled horns was rushing fiercely to butt Calyptra's little boy, who had strayed from his mother, when the boar of Heracles,¹ breaking his tether, buried his tusks in the ram's belly and gave the child its life. Is it because he remembers Hera's cruelty that Heracles pities children of tender age?

old man of countless years, the battered remnant of a seafarer, not even when he was on the point of death quitted his old tub. They burnt his shell on the top of him, that the old man might sail to Hades in his own boat.

243.—APOLLONIDES

THE parents of Aristippus both rejoiced and wept for their son, and one day saw both his good and evil fate. When he had escaped from the burning house, straightway Zeus launched at his head the all-powerful flame of his thunderbolt. Then those who bewailed the dead spoke this word: “Unhappy boy, reserved by Fate for the fire of Heaven!”

244.—BY THE SAME

A TIMID troop of horned deer, when the frozen mountain tops were covered by the snow clouds, sought refuge, poor creatures, in the river, setting off there in the hope of warming their swift limbs in the moist exhalations of the stream. But the unkind stream, shutting them in all of a sudden, imprisoned them in odious fetters of wintry ice. A crowd of countrymen feasted on the unsnares game that had often escaped the net and its stakes.

245.—ANTIPHANES

By the unhappy marriage-bed of Petale at her bitter bridal stood Hades, not Hymen. For, as she fled alone through the darkness, dreading the first taste of the yoke of Cypris—a terror common to all maidens—the cruel watch-dogs killed her. We had hoped to see her a wife and suddenly we could hardly find her corpse.

246.—MARCUS ARGENTARIUS

Thou art broken, sweet flagon, dear to the wine-bibbers, and hast shed from thy belly all the liquor of Bacchus. For from afar fell on thee, with a dreadful crash, a stone like a thunderbolt hurled by the hand, not of Zeus (Dios), but of Dion. And when it smote thee there was much laughter and many gibes, and a great noise among the company. I do not lament thee, flagon, who didst give birth to Bacchus the erier of Ehoe, for thy fate has been the same as Semele's.¹

247.—PHILIPPUS

I AM a fine plane-tree that the furious blasts of the south wind uprooted and laid low on the ground. But after a bath of wine I stand again erect, vivified both in summer and winter by a rain sweeter than that of heaven. By death I lived, and I alone, after drinking the juice of Bacchus which makes others bend, am seen to stand straighter.

248.—BOETHUS, THE WRITER OF ELEGIES

IF Dionysus had come revelling with the Maenads and Satyrs to holy Olympus, looking just as Pylades the great artist played him in the ballet according to the true canons of the servants of the tragic Muse, Hera, the consort of Zeus, would have ceased to be jealous, and exclaimed : “ Semele, thou didst pretend that Bacchus was thy son ; 'twas I who bore him.”

¹ The flagon is said to have given birth to Bacchus by spilling the wine, as Semele when smitten by the thunderbolt spilt the child from her womb.

250.—HONESTUS

(cp. Nos. 216, 253)

I, THEBES, rose at the sound of the lyre, and sunk in ruins at that of the flute. Alas for the Muse that was adverse to harmony ! They now lie deaf, the remains of my towers, once charmed by the lyre, the stones that took their places of their own accord in the muse-built walls, a gift that cost thee, Amphion, no labour ; for with thy seven-stringed lyre thou didst build thy seven-gated city.

253.—PHILIPPUS OF THESSALONICA

SPLENDID in Thebes was the marriage of Cadmus, but that of Oedipus was abominable. Bacchus welcomed the orgies which Pentheus, having ridiculed, bewailed. The walls arose to the music of strings, but groaned as they crumbled to the flute's. Holy were the birth-pangs of Antiope, but Iocasta's heavy with doom. Ino loved her child, but Athamas was impious. The city was always famous (?). See how for good or evil History always had plenty to tell of Thebes.

I, PHILAENIS, who bore children but to feed the funeral pyre, the mother weighed down by grief, who had seen the burial of three, sought refuge in the fruit of another womb; for, indeed, I was confident that the son I had not borne myself would live. So, though I had given birth to so many, I brought up an adopted son. But Fate would not allow me to possess even the gift of another mother; for no sooner was he called mine than he died, and now I have become a cause of mourning even to other mothers.

SAILING of late on the Icarian sea, Damis, the son of Nicaretus, slipped from the deck and fell into the sea. Sore did his father pray to the immortals, and call on the water, beseeching the waves for his son. But, devoured by the sea, he perished miserably. That is a sea that of old, too, was deaf to a father’s prayers.²

Gongo, the Cretan bitch, being in pup, was on the track of a hind, and had paid her vows to both Dianas. As she killed the deer she littered, and quickly did the Deliveress grant both prayers, that for success in the chase and that for an easy labour. Now Gorgo gives milk to nine children. Fly, ye Cretan deer, learning from the force of mothers in travail what their young are like to be.

WHEN the ship was dashed to pieces two men strove with each other in the water, quarrelling for one plank. Antagoras struck Pisistratus. It was not inexcusable, for his life was at stake, but Justice was the flute which Athena, after inventing it, threw away in disgust, claimed to be its inventor.

WHILE the never silent cieada was singing on the bushes in the heat with its double-tongued mouth, Crito contrived with his limed reeds to catch the songster of the air, no proper victim of his craft. But he got his deserts for his impious capture, and was no longer successful as before in the snares he set for other birds.

Why dost thou hate the Persians so bitterly even in death ? ” B. “ The passion for freedom dies not.”

295.—BIANOR

THE horse, accustomed to gallop over the plain and not over the waves, refuses to sail across the sea on the ship. Do not wonder at his neighing and kicking the sides of the vessel, and angrily trying to free himself from his bonds. He is indignant at being part of the cargo ; for the swiftest of all creatures should not depend on others for his passage.

296.—APOLLONIDES

SCYLLUS, when Xerxes’ huge fleet was driving all Greece before it, invented submarine warfare. Descending into the hidden depths of the realm of Nereus, he cut the cables of the ships’ anchors.¹ The Persian vessels, with all their crews, glided ashore and silently perished — the first achievement of Themistocles.

exploit when the Persian fleet was off Mt. Pelion (Paus. x. 19, 2).

297.—ANTIPATER OF THESSALONICA

(Probably addressed to Gaius Caesar when sent by Augustus to the East in the year 1 B.C.)

Hie thee to the Euphrates, son of Zeus; already in the East the feet of the Parthians hasten to desert to thee. Hie thee on thy way, O prince, and thou shalt find, Caesar, their bow-strings relaxed by fear. But base all thou dost on thy father's instructions. The Ocean is Rome's boundary on every side; be thou the first to seal her domination with the rising Sun.

298.—ANTIPHILUS

My staff guided me to the temple uninitiated not only in the mysteries, but in the sunlight. The goddesses initiated me into both, and on that night I knew that my eyes as well as my soul had been purged of night. I went back to Athens without a staff, proclaiming the holiness of the mysteries of Demeter more clearly with my eyes than with my tongue.

299.—PHILIPPUS OF THESSALONICA

We meek-necked oxen, the ploughers of the field, endure in the sea the labour of the land. We both draw in the water a furrow not cut by iron, the long ropes attached to the seine. We toil now for fish, not for corn. Ah, long-suffering creatures! Oxen have begun to plough the sea too for its fruits.

I HAD drunk my fill of untempered water, when Bacchus yesterday, standing by my bed, spoke thus : “Thou sleepest a sleep worthy of them whom Aphrodite hates. Tell me, thou temperate man, hast thou heard of Hippolytus? Fear lest thou suffer some fate such as his.” Having so spoken he departed, and ever since then water is not agreeable to me.

306.—ANTIPHILUS

CEASE working, ye woodcutters, at least as far as concerns ships. It is no longer pine-trees that glide over the waves but hides. Ships are no longer built with bolts of bronze or iron, but their hulls are held together with flaxen cords, and the same ship now floats on the sea and now travels on land, folded to be mounted on a carriage. Argo was formerly the theme of song, but Pallas has granted to Sabinus to build a still more novel keel.¹

307.—PHILIPPUS

DAPHNE, who once refused Phoebus, now uprears her dark-leaved bough from the altar of Caesar, having found a better god than that former one. Though she hated the son of Leto, she desires Zeus the son of Aeneas. She struck root not in the Earth, her mother, but in a stone. Not even stone can refuse to bear offspring to Caesar.²

WHEN the sea-robbers near the Tyrrhene surges cast the lyre-player into the sea from the ship, a dolphin straightway received him, together with the sweet-voiced lyre to whose strains he sung, and swum, saving him from the deep, till it landed on the Isthmus of Corinth. Had the sea, then, fish which were juster than men?

A LITTLE mouse devoured some unfired gold-dust, the scrapings of the file's iron teeth, lighter than the sands of Libya. It proved a heavy meal for him; for his belly, trailing with the weight, made the swift creature slow-footed, and so he was caught and cut open, and the stolen treasure extracted from his inside. O YE who pass along this road, whether ye are going from town to the fields or returning to the city from the country, we two gods here are the guardians of the boundary. I, as you see me, am Hermes, and this other fellow is Heracles.¹ We both are gracious to mortals, but to each other—save the mark! If anyone offers a dish of wild pears to both of us, he bolts them. Yes, and indeed, likewise grapes; whether they are ripe ones or any quantity of sour ones, he stows them away. I detest this method of going shares, and get no pleasure from it. Let whoever brings us anything serve it separately to each of us and not to both, saying, “This is for thee, Heracles,” and again, “This is for Hermes.” So he might make up our quarrel.

322.—LEONIDAS OF TARENTUM

THESE spoils are not mine. Who hung this unwelcome gift on the walls of Ares? Unbruised are the helmets, unstained by blood the polished shields, and unbroken the frail spears. My whole face reddens with shame, and the sweat, gushing from my forehead, bedews my breast. Such ornaments are for a lady's bower, or a banqueting-hall, or a court, or a bridal chamber. But blood-stained be the cavalier's spoils that deck the temple of Ares; in those I take delight.

323.—ANTIPATER OF SIDON

WHO hung here these glittering shields, these unstained spears and unbroken helmets, dedicating to murderous Ares ornaments that are no ornaments? Will no one cast these weapons out of my house? Their place is in the wassailing halls of unwarlike men, not within the walls of Enyalius. I delight in hacked trophies and the blood of dying men, if, indeed, I am Ares the Destroyer.

On a Shell with an image of Love carved inside it

Of old I dwelt in the depths on a sea-washed rock clothed in luxuriant seaweed, but now in my bosom sleeps the delightful child, tender Love, the servant of diademed Cypris.

326.—LEONIDAS OF TARENTUM

HAIL, thou cold stream that leapest down from the cloven rock, and ye images of the Nymphs carved by a shepherd's hand ! Hail, ye drinking troughs and your thousand little dolls,¹ ye Maidens of the spring, that lie drenched in its waters ! All hail ! And I, Aristocles, the wayfarer, give you this cup which I dipped in your stream to quench my thirst.

327.—HERMOCREON

YE Nymphs of the water, to whom Hermocreon set up these gifts when he had lighted on your delightful fountain, all hail ! And may ye ever, full of pure drink, tread with your lovely feet the floor of this your watery home.

328.—DAMOSTRATUS

YE Naiad Nymphs, who shed from the mountain cliff this fair stream in inexhaustible volume, Damo-stratus, the son of Antilas, gave you these wooden images and the two hairy boar-skins.

COMIC POET

WHAT path of life should one pursue? In the market-place are broils and business difficulties, and at home are anxieties; in the country there is too much labour, and at sea there is fear. In a foreign land there is apprehension if you possess anything, and if you are ill off, life is a burden. You are married? You won't be without cares. You are unmarried? You live a still more lonely life. Children are a trouble, and a childless life is a crippled one. Youth is foolish, and old age again is feeble. There is then, it seems, a choice between two things, either not to be born or to die at once on being born.

My cruel-hearted mother, an evil mother to me—
it pains me much, the wound that a mortal man

Then she, taking thee to her tired and panting, wipes off the weed and the bitter flowers of the sea, and joining her lips to thine, clasping like a bride thy Olympian stream in the sweet bonds of her embrace, lulls thee to sleep lying in her bosom. . . . and² thy limpid fount was defiled by showers of blood, and no longer was thy heart filled with desire for thy Syracusan love, but thou didst

WINDY winter has left the skies, and the purple season of flowery spring smiles. The dark earth garlands herself in green herbage, and the plants bursting into leaf wave their new-born tresses. The meadows, drinking the nourishing dew of dawn, laugh as the roses open. The shepherd on the hills delights to play shrilly on the pipes, and the goatherd joys in his white kids. Already the mariners sail over the broad billows, their sails bellied by the kindly Zephyr. Already, crowning their heads with the bloom of berried ivy, men cry evoe! to Dionysus the giver of the grape. The bees that the bull's carcase generates² bethink them of their artful labours, and seated on the hive they build the fresh white loveliness of their many-celled comb. The races of birds sing

I SEE a new kind of reeds. Are they, perchance, the wild product of some strange brazen soil? They are not even moved by our winds, but from a cave of bull's hide issues a blast and passes into these hollow reeds at their root. 367.—LUCIAN HERO, the son of Menippus, in his youth wasted his inheritance shamefully on prodigal outlay; but Euctemon, his father's friend, when he saw that he was already pressed by parching poverty, strove with tears to cheer him, and gave him his daughter to wife with a large dowry. But when wealth got the better of Thero's wits, he began to live again in the same extravagance, satisfying disgracefully every lust of his vile belly and the parts beneath it. Thus the returning wave of baneful poverty buried Thero the second time, and Euctemon wept a second time, not for Thero, but for his daughter's dowry and bed, and learnt that a man who has made ill use of his own substance will not make honest use of another's.

370.—TIBERIUS ILLUSTRIS

I AM a fawn slain by no dogs, or stake-nets, or huntsmen, but in the sea I suffered the fate that threatened me on land. For I rushed into the sea from the wood, and then the netted snare of the fishermen dragged me up on the beach. I was wrong in flying, and all in vain, from the shore, and deservedly was taken by the fisherman after I had deserted my hills. Never again, fishermen, shall your hands be unsuecessful, since you now knit webs that serve both for sea and land.

A HOUND was pressing hotly on a swift-footed hare that had just freed itself from the toils of the net. The hare, rapidly turning away from the rough hill, leapt, to avoid the dog's jaws, into the deep water near the shore, where a sea-dog with one snap caught it at once in his teeth. The poor hare was evidently destined to be dog's meat.

For as many days and nights as pass, the young man and maiden converse with each other, going to bed together without the knowledge of their dear parents, who inhabit Sestos, and Abydus, and divine Arisbe.

382.—ANOTHER

On the Theme “He who first heard Echo”

FRIENDS, Danaan heroes, servants of Ares, shall I lie or speak the truth, as my heart bids me? At the utmost border of the land where the tall trees grow lives a fair-haired dreadful goddess gifted with speech, either a goddess or a woman, and they called aloud on her. If she hear one call or speak, she excellently repeats what was spoken. But why narrate all this to thee in detail? Only I cannot look on her face or perceive her. Whatever kind of word thou speakest the like shalt thou hear.

384.—THE ROMAN MONTHS

January: From me opens the door of the solar year and the sun looks on the supreme magistrates of Italy.¹ February: I wet the land with thick snowflakes, making it pregnant with the splendour of spring. March: Mars begins from me, and flowers and sweet milk, and on my twentieth day night and day are equal. April: Let the gardener now cut shoots and graft tame branches on wild stems. May: Now the sea is open ; equip the ships ; it is time to sail them out of the untroubled harbours. June: I am half way between the rose and white lily, and I am heavy with branches of yellow cherries. July: The Sun crosses Caneer, and the husbandman with his sickle cuts the ripe ears. August: I separate the corn from the straw, and in Leo the fountains of the Naiads are at their purest. September: I am heavy with grapes and all kinds of fruit, and again night and day become equal. October: Who can be sweeter than me, who pour forth wine when I bring Bacchus from the vineyard to the press? November: If thou hast Pallas' olive-trees it is time to press the fruit and remember thee of labour. December: I bid thee cease from ploughing the fallow land, for the frosts will injure the milky seeds.

385.—STEPHANUS THE GRAMMARIAN

Contents of the Books of the "Iliad"

ALPHA contains the prayers of Chryses, the plague in the army and the quarrel of the kings. Beta has the dream and the Council, and numbers the ships. Gamma is the single combat for Helen between her husbands. Delta the Council of the gods, the breaking of the oaths, and beginning of the fight. In Epsilon the son of Tydeus wounds Cytherea and Ares. Zeta is the converse between Hector and Andromache. In Eta Ajax fights in single combat with divine Hector. Theta is the Council of the gods, the Trojans' victory, and Hector's boast. Iota is the embassy to stubborn Achilles. In Kappa men go out from both sides to reconnoitre. In Lambda Hector's men wound the chiefs of the Greeks. In My the Achaeans' wall falls by the hands of the Trojans. In Ny Poseidon secretly gives victory to the Greeks. In Xi Hera befools Zeus by love and sleep. In Omicron Zeus is enraged with Poseidon and Hera. In Pi the spear of Hector slays warlike Patroclus. In Ro the Greeks and Trojans are engaged round the corpse. In Sigma Thetis brings arms to Achilles from Hephaestus. In Tau divine Achilles leaves off his wrath and dashes forth. In Ypsilon there is strife among the gods, but it brings victory to the Greeks. In Phi Achilles subdues the Trojans at the river by his might. In Chi Achilles slays Hector after chasing him thrice round the wall. In Psi Achilles celebrates the games he gives the Greeks. In Omega Achilles accepts presents and gives up to Priam his son's body.

WOULD I had continued to stray at the will of all the winds that blow, rather than be fixed firm to help wandering Leto in her labour : I should never have had to lament such solitude. Alas, poor me, how many Greek ships now sail past deserted Delos, once so revered ! Hera has taken this late but terrible vengeance on Leto.¹

IF there be one who does not take delight in the strains of the flute and the sweet sound of harp-playing, or in neetareous wine, oldest of the old, or in torches, revels, garlands, and scent, but who takes a frugal supper and stores up with greedy hands the fruits of stealthy-footed usury, to me he is dead, and I pass by the . . . corpse, who hoards for the weasands of others.

410.—TULLIUS SABINUS

A MOUSE onee,lickerish of every kind of food and not even shy of the mouse-trap, but one who won booty even from death, gnawed through Phoebus' melodious lyre-string. The strained chord springing up to the bridge of the lyre, throttled the mouse. We wonder at the bow's good aim ; but Phoebus uses his lyre, too, as a weapon wherewith to aim well at his enemies.

CORNELIUS is changed all of a sudden, and is no longer pleased with our simple literary life, but depends on light hope. We are not the same as before to him, but the hope on which he hangs is another. Let us give in, my heart; we are thrown; seek not to resist; it is a silver fall¹ that has laid us on the ground.

412.—PHILODEMUS

IT is already the season of the rose, Sosylus, and of ripe chick-peas, and the first cut cabbages, and smelts, and fresh salted cheese, and the tender leaves of curly lettuces. But we do not go up to the pleasaunce or sit on the belvedere, Sosylus, as we used. Yet Antigenes and Bacchius were sporting but yesterday, and to-day we carry them to their graves.

THE terebinth island² has few vineyards, being small, but is all flat and not rugged. The islands near it are large and broad, but for the most part rough, and superior in this only, their size. On a Ship built from the Profits of a Brothel

I WAS formerly, too, my master's partner in his lucrative trade, when the crew he collected consisted of public votaries of Cypris. From those profits he built my keel that Cypris might see me, a product of the land, tossing on the sea. My rig befits a lady of pleasure; I wear dainty white linen, and on my timbers lies a delicate dye.¹ Come, sailors, confidently mount on my stern. I can take any number of oarsmen.²

On the Same

I AM a ship built from the business of Cypris, and betake me to the sea that gave birth to that goddess; for the man who made me was a merchant of beauty, and christened me Courtesan, for I am friendly to all. Board me confidently; I don't demand a heavy fare; I receive all comers. I carry both natives and foreigners; you can row me either on land or in the sea.

417.—ANTIPATER OF THESSALONICA

LAMPO, Midas' hound, died of thirst, though he toiled hard for his life. For with his paws he dug into the damp earth, but the lazy water would not hasten to gush from the hidden source. He fell exhausted, and then the spring burst forth. Is it, Nymphs, that ye were wrath with Lampo for all the deer he had killed?

CEASE from grinding, ye women who toil at the mill; sleep late, even if the crowing cocks announce the dawn. For Demeter has ordered the Nymphs to perform the work of your hands, and they, leaping down on the top of the wheel, turn its axle which, with its revolving spokes, turns the heavy concave Nisyrian mill-stones. We taste again the joys of the primitive life, learning to feast on the products of Demeter without labour.

437.—THEOCRITUS

GOATHERD, on turning the corner of that path where the oaks are, thou shalt find a newly carved image made of a fig-bough, three forked, with the bark still on, without ears, but able with its generative phallus to do the work of Aphrodite. Round it is a most holy hedge, and a perennial stream issuing from the rocks feeds on all sides abundance of laurel, myrtle, and sweet-scented cypress, round which eurl the tendrils of the vine, mother of the grape. In spring the shrill song of the blackbirds echoes here with its varied notes, and the brown nightingales pour from their throats their honeyed voice in response. Sit here and pray to kind Priapus to make me fall out of love with Daphnis, and sacrifice at once to him a fine kid. But if he grants the prayer I will offer him in return three sacrifices. I will kill him a heifer, a shaggy billy-goat, and the stalled lamb I have. May the god be benevolent and grant it.

482.—AGATHIAS SCHOLASTICUS

WE Mortals of no account, even if we perform great deeds, do not survive long in the memory of anyone; but as for the great, if they do nothing, if they only breathe, as the Libyan said, it is engraved in adamant. For instance Zeno, the lord and emperor of our city, while in the middle of a game played with the capricious dice, found himself in this complicated position: when of the white men who were on their way back, the sixth line contained seven, the ninth one, and the tenth and summus two each, while the line after the summus had two, and the last piece was on the divus. Black had two on the eighth line, and as many on the eleventh; on the twelfth were two, and one on the thirteenth. There were two on Antigonus and also on the fifteenth and eighteenth, and the fourth line from the last (the twentieth) also had two. It was the king's turn to play for White, and not seeing the trap in store for him, he cast the three dice from the wooden box with its hidden ladder, and threw two, six, and five, so that at once he had eight single pieces in all which had formerly been next others (?). Avoid backgammon,¹ as the king himself did not escape from its blind chance.

by the break-up of the three pairs, the single on the “divus” for some reason not being moved forward.

¹ This refers to pantomime or, as we should now call it, "ballet."

THE DECLAMATORY EPIGRAMS

I, Thalia, am concerned with comic verse, and I present in play, on the scene that loves the castanets, the actions of immoral people.

Look on the image of thy wisdom ; for thy heart should conceive Calliope's image to be wisdom.

I, Clio, dwell by the laurelled tripods of Phoebus, the Muse of prophecy and history.

I, Urania, through calculations revealed by God, teach the recurring necessity of the stars' motions.

Look on Melpomene, skilled in lovely eloquence, giving force to brazen-voiced epic song.

I, Polymnia, am silent, but speak through the entrancing motions of my hands, conveying by my gestures a speaking silence.¹

506.—PLATO

SOME say the Muses are nine, but how carelessly !
Look at the tenth, Sappho from Lesbos.

507.—CALLIMACHUS

On the Phaenomena of Aratus

THE rhythm and the manner are Hesiod's. He of Soli took as a model not the worst of poets, but, I am afraid, the most honeyed of his verses.² Hail ! delicate phrases, the monument of Aratus' sleepless nights.

² It is difficult to see the point, but I do not venture to adopt Toup's μη <οὐ>, "not the most honeyed." The reference is to Hesiod, Works and Days, 383 seq.

“LET every man ply his own trade,” indeed. Under the high Alps the shock-headed robbers, when they have a job in hand, thus avoid the watch-dogs. They grease themselves thickly with kidney-fat to deceive the dogs’ keen scent. It is more ready in devising evil than good, the Ligurian mind.²

517.—ANTIPATER OF THESSALONICA

ORPHEUS charmed beasts and thou charmest Orpheus. Phoebus vanquished the Phrygian,³ but he yields to thee when thou playest, Glaphyrus—the name⁴ suits both thy art and thy person. Athena would never have thrown the flute away⁵ had she made such music as thou, master of varied delight. Sleep himself, lying in Pasithea’s arms, would awake if he heard thee.

³ Marsyas. ⁴ = refined.

⁵ Athena invented the flute, but threw it away in disgust as playing it disfigured her.

THE DECLAMATORY EPIGRAMS

I was playing on the lyre an elaborate piece, and in the middle of it my plectron loosened one chord, and when the time came to strike the note I was ready to play, it did not convey the correct sound to the ear. Then of its own accord a cicada perched on the bridge of the lyre and supplied the deficiency of the harmony. I had struck six chords, and when I required the seventh I borrowed this cicada's voice ; for the midday songster of the hillside adapted to my performance that pastoral air of his, and when he shrilled he combined with the lifeless chords to change the value of the phrase. Therefore I owe a debt of thanks to my partner in the duet, and wrought in bronze he sits on my lyre.

602.—EVENUS OF ATHENS

I who once supplicated Cypris with my maiden hands and, waving torches, prayed for marriage, after I had loosed my nuptial dress in the bridal chamber, suddenly saw spring from my thighs the marks of manhood. Now I am called a bridegroom instead of a bride, and crown the altars of Ares and Heracles instead of those of Aphrodite. Thebes once told of Tiresias, and now Chaleis greets in a chlamys her who formerly wore the snood.

603.—ANTIPATER OF SIDON

THESE five votaries of Dionysus the Saviour are entering upon the rapid dance. One lifts on high the body of a grim lion, another an antlered Arcadian stag, a third a bird with lovely plumage, a fourth a kettle-drum, and the fifth a heavy brazen clapper. All are frenzied and distraught by the bacchic fury of the god.¹

604.—NOSSIS

This is the picture of Thaumareta. Well did the painter render the bearing and the beauty of the gentle-eyed lady! Thy little house-dog would fawn upon thee if it saw thee here, thinking that it looked on the mistress of its home.

605.—BY THE SAME

Look at Cytherea whom Ares once loved, bathing

EITHER such water gave birth to Cytherea, or Cytherea, by bathing in it, made the water such.

This bath is the playground of the Graces, for it

On the Royal Hot Baths

THESE are really the royal hot baths, for our fathers, admiring them, gave them this name. By no mortal fire is the bright water warmed, but the spring is born hot of its own accord. Nor dost thou require a cold stream for the bath, but tempered as thou dost desire it, it gushes forth.

BLEST are you, long-suffering labourer ! You have only to put up, all your life, with the pains of hoeing and poverty. Simple are your meals, and you sleep in the woods, after satisfying your throat's vast thirst for water. Yet you are perfectly sound, and sitting here for a few moments lighten your belly. You don't rub down the lower part of your spine, or beat your thighs, but you get rid of the burden naturally. They are in evil case, the rich and those who associate with them, whom feasting pleases more than sound health.

645.—MACEDONIUS THE CONSUL

I AM Sardis, the chief city of Lydia, who stand under flowery Tmolus, by the stream of Maeonian Hermes. I witnessed first the birth of Jove, for I refused to betray the secretly born son of my own Rhea. It was I, too, who nursed Bacchus, and I saw him shining with broader flame in the lightning-flash. First in my fields did Autumn, the giver of wine, milk from the udder of the grape-cluster the golden juice. Everything combined to adorn me, and old Time often saw me envied by the most flourishing cities.

wealth gained by despoiling with the sword the pos-

715.—ΑΝΑΚΡΕΟΝΤΟΣ

Βουκόλε, τὰν ἀγέλαι πόρρω νέμε, μὴ τὸ Μύρωνος βοΐδιον ώς ἔμπνουν βουσὶ συνεξελάσῃς.

716.—ΤΟΥ ΛΥΤΟΥ

Βοίδιον οὐ χούνοις τετυπωμένον, ἀλλ' ὑπὸ γήρως χαλκωθὲν σφετέρη ψεύσατο χειρὶ Μύρων.

717.—ΕΤΗΝΟΤ

* Η τὸ δέρας χάλκειον ὅλον βοῦται τῷδ' ἐπίκειται

718.—ΤΟΥ ΛΥΤΟΥ

Λύτος ἐρεῖ τάχα τοῦτο Μύρων· “Οὐκ ἐπλασα ταύταν τὰν δάμαλιν, ταύτας δ' εἰκόν' ἀνεπλασάμην.”

719.—ΛΕΩΝΙΔΟΥ

Οὐκ ἐπλασέν με Μύρων, ἐψεύσατο· βοσκομέγαν δὲ

THE DECLAMATORY EPIGRAMS

715.—ANACREON (?)

HERDSMAN, pasture thy herd far from here, lest taking Myron's heifer to be alive thou drive it off with the rest.

716.—BY THE SAME

MYRON pretended this heifer to be the work of his hands, but it was never formed in the mould, but turned into bronze owing to old age.

717.—EVENUS

EITHER a complete hide of bronze clothes here a real cow, or the bronze has a soul inside it.

718.—BY THE SAME

PERHAPS Myron himself will say this: "I did not mould this heifer, but its image.

719.—LEONIDAS

MYRON did not mould me; he lied; but driving me from the herd where I was feeding, he fixed me to a stone base.

720.—ANTIPATER OF SIDON

IF Myron had not fixed my feet to this stone I would have gone to pasture with the other cows.

721.—BY THE SAME

CALF, why dost thou approach my flanks, and why dost thou low? The artist put no milk in my udder.

THE DECLAMATORY EPIGRAMS

721A.—ANONYMOUS

THE cow has just returned from ploughing, and owing to that is lazy and will not advance.

722.—ANTIPATER

PASS by the heifer, cowherd, and whistle not to her from afar. She is expecting her calf to suckle it.

723.—BY THE SAME

THE lead and stone hold me fast, but, otherwise, thanks to thee, sculptor Myron, I would be nibbling lotus and rushes.

724.—BY THE SAME

I THINK the heifer will low. Of a truth it is not Prometheus alone who moulds living creatures, but thou too, Myron.

725.—ANONYMOUS

MYRON was looking for his own cow among the others, and found it with difficulty by driving the rest away.

726.—ANONYMOUS

THE cow, its mother, moulded this heifer giving birth to it, but the hand of Myron did not mould it, but gave birth to it.

727.—ANONYMOUS

THE horned cow would have spoken, though made of bronze, if Myron had worked entrails inside it.

THE DECLAMATORY EPIGRAMS

728.—ANTIPATER

THE heifer, I think, will low, and if it delays it is the fault of the senseless bronze, not Myron's.

729.—ANONYMOUS

LET someone attach me to the solid plough and put a yoke on my neck, for as far as depends on thy art, Myron, I will plough.

730.—DEMETRIUS OF BITHYNIA

IF a calf sees me, it will low; a bull will mount me, and the herdsman drive me to the herd.

731.—ANONYMOUS

MYRON placed me, the heifer, here, but the herds-men throw stones at me thinking I have strayed.

732.—MARCUS ARGENTARIUS

STRANGER, if thou seest my herdsman, give him this message, that the sculptor Myron tied me up here.

733.—ANONYMOUS

STRANGER, it was Myron who moulded this cow, on which this calf fawns as if it were alive, taking it for its mother.

734.—DIOSCORIDES

IN vain, bull, thou rushest up to this heifer, for it is lifeless. The sculptor of cows, Myron, deceived thee.

THE DECLAMATORY EPIGRAMS

735.—ANONYMOUS

A CALF died beside thy heifer, Myron, deeeived into thinking that the bronze had milk inside.

736.—ANONYMOUS

ALACK! Myron, thou didst not have time to complete thy casting, but the bronze hardened before thou couldst put life into it.

737.—ANONYMOUS

THOU strikest the bronze heifer. Art deeeived thee much, herdsman: Myron did not add life.

738.—JULIAN, PREFECT OF EGYPT

NATURE and Queen Art strove in the matter of this cow, and Myron gave to each a prize of equal value. When one looks at it Art robs nature of her superiority, but when one touches it Nature is nature.

739.—BY THE SAME

MYRON deeeived thee too, gadfly, that thou plungest thy sting into the hard flanks of the bronze cow. But the gadfly is excusable. What wonder! when Myron deceived even the eyes of the herdsmen.

740.—GEMINUS

IT is the base to which it is attached that keeps back the heifer, and if freed from this it will run off

741.—ANONYMOUS

Thou wast bronze, deceptive heifer, and the husbandman came up to thee dragging a plough and carrying a yoke. He far excels all other artists, Myron, who by his labour made thee alive, just like a labouring cow.

742.—PHILIPPUS

Take off from my neck, husbandman, the collar, and free me from the iron furrow-cutter; for Myron did not make my bronze into flesh, but his art gave me the aspect of being alive, so that often I even wished to low. He did not, however, let me go to work, but tied me to a base.

743.—THEODORIDAS

These cows are Thessalian, and by the gates of Itonian Athena¹ they stand, a beautiful gift, all of bronze, twelve in number, the work of Phradmon, all wrought from the spoil of the naked Illyrians.

744.—LEONIDAS

UNLESS the bronze glistened and betrayed the work to be a product of Hephaestus' cunning art, one looking from afar would think that Seylla herself stood here, transferred from sea to land, so threatening is her gesture, such wrath does she exhibit, as if dashing ships to pieces in the sea!

On a Mosquito Net

No powerful beast, or fish of the sea, or bird do I catch in my meshes, but men willing to be caught. My defensive art, in no wise inferior to a city's wall, keeps a man who would avoid the sting of flies uneaten as he takes his siesta after the midday meal. I bring him the gift of undisturbed slumber, and save the slaves themselves from their service of chasing the flies away.

765.—BY THE SAME

On the Same

I AM hung round wealthy bridal beds and am the net, not of the huntress Artemis, but of the tender Queen of Paphos. I cover the sleeper with a many-meshed web, so that he in no way loses the life-giving breeze.

766.—AGATHIAS SCHOLASTICUS

On the Same

IT is the office of nets to surround the winged tribes and enclose their quick brood; but I take pleasure in chasing them away and do not cover them round, but rather keep them off when they attack. Not a single mosquito, however small, will manage to get through the fabric of my net. One may say that I save from death the winged creatures while I guard the beds of men. Can anyone be more righteous than I am?

THE DECLAMATORY EPIGRAMS

767.—BY THE SAME

On a Draught-board

SEATED by this table made of pretty stones, you will start the pleasant game of dice-rattling. Neither be elated when you win, nor put out when you are beaten, blaming the little die. For even in small things the character of a man is revealed, and the dice proclaim the depth of his good sense.

768.—BY THE SAME

On the Same

THESE things are all play. The shifting current of Fortune is pictured in these unreasoning dice, and, now a winner, now a loser, you will perceive in them the unstable image of mortal life. We praise him who in life and in play imposes a limit on his joy and grief.

769.—BY THE SAME

On the Same

To men of gentle disposition this is play, but to those lacking in self-restraint it is madness and wandering of the wits and self-imposed pain. If you come in last, speak no word of offence to God, nor boil over and snort loudly. One should neither give oneself trouble in a matter of play, nor play in serious matters. Learn to allot to the hour what befits it.

776.—DIODORUS

makes this horse stand. Fierce is his glanee as he arches his neck and shakes out his wind-tossed mane thy work, Lysippus, would surprise us by running away; for Art makes it breathe.

long due to the gods.²

² i.e., to the emperors. The corrupt word in l. 5 (or possibly καρπὸς in l. 3, where καρπῶ is a conjecture) conceals the clue to the identity of the queen. She was probably Oriental.

MAXIMINUS built me in the newly constracted Rome, fixing my secure foundations actually on the beach. Infinite beauty extends itself around me. At the foot of my most strong foundations the salt current rolls to the lovely sea, just touching the land in front of me enough to wet its edge. Often a man leaning out from me slightly has greatly rejoiced his heart, seeing in all directions different things : trees, houses, ships, sea, city, sky, and earth.

THE DECLAMATORY EPIGRAMS

809.—BY THE SAME

On a Statue of Pindar

CYRUS set up Pindar beside the water, because singing to the lyre he said, "Water is best."¹

810.—ANONYMOUS

THIS is Justin next Sophia. Both made the golden work after their Assyrian triumph.²

811.—ANONYMOUS

JUSTINIAN, the emperor, built me the bright house, a marvel for the sun to view at his rising. For never before when he mounted his celestial path did he see such beauty on earth.

812.—ANONYMOUS

On Justin

DOMINUS in the pure portals of Justice erected the statue of divine Justin, the pure guardian of Law.

813.—ANONYMOUS

On Sophia his Wife

THIS statue of Sophia stands before the gates of Justice, for wisdom should not be apart from justice.

² The Persian war, which, after all, was not very successful.
